TORTS – NEGLIGENCE – PURE ECONOMIC LOSS – WHERE THE APPELLANTS WERE COMMERCIAL FARMERS WHO HAD PURCHASED SEED PRODUCED BY THE RESPONDENT – WHERE THE SEED WAS CONTAMINATED AND CAUSED ECONOMIC LOSS – WHERE THE SEED WAS SOLD WITH A DISCLAIMER OF LIABILITY – WHETHER THE RESPONDENT OWED A DUTY OF CARE TO PURCHASERS

Mallonland Pty Ltd v Advanta Seeds Pty Ltd [2023] QCA 24 ★

This case arose out of economic loss suffered by farmers who purchased contaminated sorghum seed produced by the respondent. At trial it was found that no duty of care was owed to the farmers, on account of a clear disclaimer of liability being printed on bags of the seed, which told against any assumption of responsibility. On appeal, the court unanimously upheld this conclusion, finding no error in the factual findings made, or in the legal reasoning concerning the non-existence of a duty of care.

Morrison and Bond JJA and Williams J

28 February 2023

Background

The appellants are farmers who purchased sorghum seed produced by the respondent, Advanta, between 2010 and 2014. [2]. The seed was purchased from intermediate suppliers or distributors. [6]. Unfortunately, the seed produced by Advanta had contaminating seed in it, known as “shattercane”, which competed with the normal sorghum when planted. [4]. The appellants all claimed that they had suffered economic loss as a result of this contamination. [7].

At trial the appellants failed on the basis that they had not established that Advanta owed a duty of care in the circumstances. The trial judge, Jackson J, found for the appellants on all the other aspects of its claim (including that, if a duty was owed it had been breached, and that it had caused loss). [8]. The appellants appealed against the finding that no duty of care was owed to them by Advanta. [9].

In the result, the Court unanimously dismissed the appeal. The lead judgment was given by Morrison JA, with whom Williams J agreed. [333]. Bond JA gave separate reasons in support of the same conclusion. [332].

The conclusion of the trial judge

The primary judge found that it was more likely than not that bags of seed produced by the appellants were sold with a set of terms and conditions printed on the bag. [63]. Those terms and conditions included the following:

“ATTENTION

CONDITIONS OF SALE AND USE

Upon purchasing this product and opening the bag, the purchaser (“you”) agrees to be bound by the conditions set out below. Do not open this bag until you have read and agreed with all the terms on this bag. ...

CONDITIONS

You agree that:

- Pacific Seeds Pty Ltd [Advanta] will not be liable to you or any other person for any injury, loss or damage caused or contributed to by Pacific Seeds Pty Ltd (or its servants or agents), directly or indirectly arising out of or related to the use of the product in this bag, whether as a result of their negligence or otherwise;
- All warranties, conditions, liabilities or representations in relation to the product, whether expressed or implied, are excluded by Pacific Seeds to the extent permitted by law. ...”

The trial judge concluded that the feature which denied the existence of a duty of care in this case was this disclaimer. [59]. In his Honour’s words:

“The substance of the point of the defendant’s reliance on the terms on the bags, in my view, is that they may negate the defendant’s assumption of responsibility, as a salient feature, in determining whether there is a duty of care to avoid economic loss only in the circumstances of this case.” [107].

The appeal – why no duty of care was owed

On appeal, the appellants alleged error in the finding of fact that the conditions were printed on the bags; alleged that, if it was on the bags, then it was “not clear enough or prominent enough to negate the assumption of responsibility”; and alleged that a duty of care was owed, in any event, due to a range of other considerations. [60], [109], [145].

Morrison JA reviewed the evidence of witnesses who gave evidence about the existence of the terms and conditions on the bags of seed produced during the relevant time period. Having reviewed that evidence, his Honour concluded that there was “an ample evidentiary foundation” for the conclusion reached by the trial judge. [95]. Furthermore, the challenge to the factual finding also failed because the alleged deficiencies in the evidence were not raised at trial and were not put to any of the relevant witnesses in cross-examination. [96].

As to the suggestion that the conditions were not sufficiently clear or prominent, Morrison JA noted that they were in clear language and “easy for a lay person to understand”. [131]. It was “difficult to see how the conditions could have been made more prominent” given that they “occupied the bulk of one side of the bag; they could not have been made bigger”. [139]. Accordingly, this ground also failed.

The appellants also alleged a duty of care was owed for a number of other reasons, including because this case allegedly fell within an established category of case; that there was a close physical relationship (or proximity) between Advanta and the appellants; there was reasonable foreseeability of loss; and that there was vulnerability, known reliance, and an assumption of responsibility. All of these contentions failed, in short because:

- The cases relied upon by the appellants offered “no real support for the existence of a duty [of care]” in circumstances such as the present. [173].
- The contention that there was a “close physical relationship” that supported the existence of a duty of care had not been run at trial, and should therefore “not be allowed to be raised now”. In any event, such a relationship is not determinative of a duty of care. [198], [201].
- In relation to reasonable foreseeability and vulnerability, these were established, but did not automatically mean that a duty of care arose. As concluded by the trial judge, the “central reason for finding there was no duty” was “the negation of any assumption of responsibility” (by reason of the terms and conditions). [203].

- In relation to known reliance, this was not alleged in the pleadings. [221]. As for a case based on assumption of responsibility, the terms and conditions printed on bags of seed “negated an assumption of responsibility and, therefore, the existence of a duty of care”. [223].

In separate reasons, Bond JA noted that there is a “general rule” (quoting from Brookfield Multiplex Ltd v Owners Corporation Strata Plan 61288 (2014) 254 CLR 185) that:

“damages for economic loss which is not consequential upon damage to person or property are not recoverable in negligence even if the loss is foreseeable.”

Bond JA considered that the salient features in this case did not justify a departure from this general rule. [318]. In particular, the terms and conditions on the bags meant that Advanta had “most assuredly had not assumed direct responsibility to the farmers”. [319].

Accordingly, the appeal was dismissed. [272], [332]–[333].

CONTRACT – SALE OF COMMERCIAL PROPERTY – WHERE THE CONTRACT OF SALE HAD A SPECIAL CONDITION REQUIRING THE BUYER TO ENTER INTO A DEED OF COVENANT WITH THE LOCAL COUNCIL – WHERE THE SELLER WAS REQUIRED TO PREPARE THE DEED – WHERE NO STEPS WERE TAKEN REGARDING THE DEED UNTIL THE EVENING PRIOR TO THE CONTRACT SETTling – WHERE EACH PARTY SUBSEQUENTLY PURPORTED TO TERMINATE THE CONTRACT FOR THE OTHER’S BREACHES – WHETHER THE BUYER BREACHED THE CONTRACT BY FAILING TO ENTER INTO THE DEED PRIOR TO SETTLEMENT

Evangelista Pty Ltd v Eleven 17 Ocean Street Pty Ltd* [2023] QSC 30 ★

In this judgment, Freeburn J considered the interpretation of a clause that required the buyer of a property to enter into a deed of covenant with the local Council, in circumstances where the seller did not comply with its obligation to provide a draft deed until the day of settlement.

Freeburn J

24 February 2023

The applicant, Evangelista Pty Ltd (“Evangelista”), owns a property at Ocean Street, Maroochydore. [3]. In 1991, the then-owners of the property entered into a licence with the Sunshine Coast Regional Council (“Council”), which granted reciprocal rights of access to their properties. [6]. Significantly, the licence contained a condition that each party obtain a covenant from any purchaser in favour of the other party that the purchaser would recognise and be bound by the licence, and obtain the same covenant from any subsequent purchaser. [7]. At the time it purchased the property, Evangelista granted such a covenant. [8].

In 2022, Evangelista entered into a contract to sell the property to Eleven 17 Ocean Street Pty Ltd (“Eleven 17”). [9]. The contract contained provisions that time was of the essence and that Evangelista was required to co-operate so that Eleven 17 could receive what it bargained for under the contract. [15]–[16]. Importantly, special condition 5 related to Evangelista’s covenants in respect of the licence, and had two separate limbs:

- a) an obligation on Eleven 17 to enter into a deed of covenant with the Council on or before settlement. [37]. Justice Freeburn considered this to be a positive obligation; [37] and
- b) an agreement that the deed of covenant was to be prepared by Evangelista’s solicitors. [34]–[35].

After executing the contract, neither party mentioned the requirements of special condition 5 until 6.06 pm on the evening before the contract was due to settle, when it was raised by the solicitors for Eleven 17. [20]. A deed of covenant was not provided by the solicitors for Evangelista until 11.14 am on the day of settlement. [22]. Eleven 17 had difficulties in obtaining both its directors' signatures on the deed of covenant. [23]–[24].

Consequently, Evangelista wrote to Eleven 17, stating that if Eleven 17 did not settle on that day, it would be in default. [25]. Eleven 17's solicitors responded, purporting to terminate the contract "as a consequence of the seller's failure to comply with Special Condition 5". [26]. After further discussions, Evangelista's solicitors ultimately wrote to Eleven 17's solicitors, advising that their client had elected to terminate the contract and declaring that the deposits were forfeited. [32].

Justice Freeburn held that draft deed circulated by Evangelista's solicitors complied with the requirements of the second limb of special condition 5. [49]. Eleven 17 contended, however, that the deed was nevertheless prepared and circulated too late. [51]. As to this, Freeburn J held that it should be implied that Evangelista's solicitors were required to circulate the draft deed within a reasonable time. [51]. As they only circulated it on the day of settlement, they failed to do so. [52]. Accordingly, it was in breach of the second limb of special condition 5. [53].

However, Freeburn J did not consider this breach to be a breach of a "time was of the essence" provision of the contract. [56]. Unlike the first limb of special condition 5, his Honour considered that the requirement in the second limb was not essential, but instead was a machinery provision. [61]–[62]. Further, it did not include any specification as to the time for Evangelista's solicitors to produce the draft deed. [63]. His Honour therefore concluded that time was of the essence for the first limb of special condition 5, but not the second. [64].

Eleven 17 further submitted that it was prevented from complying with its obligations under the first limb of special condition 5 by Evangelista's failure to comply with its obligations under the second limb. [69]. Justice Freeburn had some difficulties with this argument, and observed that special condition 5 required Eleven 17 to take reasonable steps to enter into the deed with the Council. [76]. Although his Honour accepted that the failure of solicitors to prepare a draft deed could in some circumstances prevent the opposite party from proceeding, this was not established on the evidence here. [77]. Further, his Honour was not satisfied that there was any evidence that Eleven 17 took any steps to comply with its obligations prior to the evening before settlement. [77]. In circumstances where the deed of covenant was simple, with prescribed terms, Freeburn J concluded that Eleven 17 was not prevented from complying with its obligations under special condition 5. [78]–[79].

Justice Freeburn ultimately concluded that at the time it purported to terminate the contract, Eleven 17 was in breach of the contract and did not have a right to terminate it. [80]. Accordingly, its purported termination was a wrongful repudiation which was accepted by Evangelista which in turn elected to terminate the contract. [80]. His Honour therefore made the declarations sought by Evangelista. [81].

SUCCESSION – INTESTACY AND DISTRIBUTION ON INTESTACY – WHETHER THE DECEASED HAD BEEN LIVING IN A DE-FACTO RELATIONSHIP ON A GENUINE DOMESTIC BASIS AT THE TIME OF HIS DEATH

Estate Liam Rowan Dillon [\[2023\] QSC 27](#) ☆

In this unusual application his Honour considered whether the deceased, who committed suicide, was in a de-facto relationship at the time of his death or whether it had ended. In resolving that issue his Honour applied the criteria in s 32DA Acts Interpretation Act 1954 and reasoning in S v B (No 2) [2004] QCA 449 and determined that the deceased and the respondent were not living as a couple on a genuine domestic basis for a continuous period of at least two years prior to his death. Accordingly, he held that letters of administration on intestacy be granted to the deceased's mother.

Crow J

22 February 2023

In determining whether two persons who are not married are living together as a couple on a genuine domestic basis, the criteria in 32DA Acts Interpretation Act 1954 are important. They are:

- (a) the nature and extent of their common residence;
- (b) the length of their relationship;
- (c) whether or not a sexual relationship exists or existed;
- (d) the degree of financial dependence or interdependence, and any arrangement for financial support;
- (e) their ownership, use and acquisition of property;
- (f) the degree of mutual commitment to a shared life, including the care and support of each other;
- (g) the care and support of children;
- (h) the performance of household tasks;
- (i) the reputation and public aspects of their relationship.

The reasoning in S v B (No 2) [2004] QCA 449 is also directly relevant. In that case, the court stressed that in the case of de-facto relationships the onus falls upon the party asserting the relationship to prove cohabitation of the required quality; and to also establish the positive aspects of a continuing relationship (rather than the party asserting separation being required to demonstrate the converse) (at [50]).

The available evidence in this instance was convoluted, and consisted of affidavits, text messages, tenancy documentation, a police statement, social media posts and emails. [10]–[43]. That evidence indicated that, amongst other matters, the deceased and the respondent's relationship had been strained prior to his death to the point that they had informed their friends it was at an end, the respondent had decided to move out and had made arrangements to secure a new residence, and the deceased had actively sought a new partner. [45]. Coupled with that, the criteria in 32DA Acts Interpretation Act 1954 as a whole were unsatisfied. Perhaps most importantly, the respondent herself recounted in a police statement that her relationship with the deceased ceased in mid-August 2020. [51].

Having regard to those matters, his Honour reached the view that the deceased and the respondent were not living as a couple on a genuine domestic basis from mid-August 2020 until his death on 19 September 2020: put simply, "there was no mutual commitment to a shared life". [46]. He was unconvinced by the respondent's contentions that the parties had only been temporarily separated [47], given the strength of the evidence to the contrary. [48].

Disposition

The order of the court was that letters of administration on intestacy be granted to the deceased's mother.

CORPORATIONS – MANAGED INVESTMENTS – WHERE THE COURT HAD MADE ORDERS FOR THE WINDING UP OF A MANAGED FUND ALLEGEDLY OPERATED AS A PONZI SCHEME – WHETHER FRAUD BY ONE OF THE FUND MANAGERS DISQUALIFIED THE SCHEME FROM BEING A MANAGED INVESTMENT FUND

Baskerville v Skene [2023] QSC 31 ☆

In this case, an issue arose in the context of a strike-out application as to whether a managed fund that was allegedly established as a Ponzi scheme in order to defraud investors could be considered a managed investment scheme under the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth). Justice Freeburn held that it would lead to absurd results if one act of fraud against the fund by the fund's manager disqualified the Fund as a managed investment scheme.

Freeburn J

24 February 2023

On 16 January 2019, Martin J made an order for the winding up of the Goldsky Global Access Fund (“the Fund”) under s 601EE(2) Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) (“the Act”). [11]. On 3 June 2021, the liquidator of the Fund swore an affidavit deposing to his belief that the Fund had been operated as a Ponzi Scheme. [12]. The liquidator brought proceedings against various parties to recover amounts paid out of the Fund prior to the winding up. [19]–[21]. In response, the defendants brought an application for summary judgment under r 293 UCPR, or alternatively to strike out the statement of claim under r 171 UCPR. [1]. Both applications were made, in part, on the basis that s 601EE(2) of the Act did not allow the Court to order the winding up of the Fund, and as a result, the orders of Martin J “ought not to have been made”. [39]–[40].

Under s 601EE(2) of the Act, the Court may order the winding up of a “managed investment scheme” if the scheme is required to be registered under s 601ED of the Act, but is not so registered. The definition of a “managed investment scheme” in s 9 of the Act includes schemes in which, inter alia, members make contributions which “are to be pooled, or used in a common enterprise, to produce financial benefits” for the members.

The Fund was not registered. [13]. The Court’s power to wind up the Fund under s 601EE would, therefore, only be enlivened if the Fund met the definition of a managed investment scheme. The defendants relied on National Australia Bank v Norman (2009) 180 FCR 243 (“Norman”), to argue that a fund involving the misappropriation of investor funds could not be a managed investment scheme. [48]. In that case, Gilmour J held at [185]:

“Any scheme involving a programme or plan for the misappropriation of investors’ funds could not involve contributions being pooled or used in a common enterprise to produce financial benefits ‘for the people ... who hold interests in the scheme’, as required by the second limb of the definition of ‘managed investment scheme’.”

As noted by Freeburn J, Norman considered a circumstance in which the relevant funds had been placed into one bank account but were to be dealt with according to the instructions of each contributor. [50]. Additionally, in Norman, the only discernible “enterprise” was the fraudulent enterprise of the fund manager. [54]. Those factors were not present in the instant case, and Norman was distinguished on that basis. [51], [54]. Justice Freeburn took the case as authority for the proposition that a plan to misappropriate investor funds was a factor relevant to whether a fund was a managed investment scheme. [51]. Accordingly, his Honour refused to strike out the statement of claim, or alter the orders made by Martin J for the winding up of the Fund. [56].

His Honour also noted that the judicial power to order a winding up extends to partnerships and unincorporated associations. [38]. On that basis, although the point was not argued, his Honour indicated, in passing, that the Court would have power to wind up the Fund even if it was not a managed investment scheme. [55].

PLEADINGS – DENIALS AND NON-ADMISSIONS – WHETHER DENIAL NOT ACCOMPANIED BY THE REQUISITE DIRECT EXPLANATION UNDER R 166(4) UCPR – WHETHER LEAVE TO WITHDRAW DEEMED ADMISSIONS SHOULD BE GIVEN PER R 188 UCPR – R 166(4), R 188 UCPR

Welsh v Biggin Pty Ltd [\[2023\] QSC 34](#) ☆

The plaintiff challenged certain paragraphs of the defendant's pleading. A group of seven paragraphs within the defence all proffered the same allegations as an explanation for why the allegations were untrue. Each of those allegations, in and of themselves, were insufficient to amount to a proper denial. The Court made two further findings in relation to r 166(4) of the UCPR. First, "belief" under r 166(4) relates to a belief in a factual state of things that would provide a direct explanation for a denial. Second, in so far as a corporate party is concerned, meeting the requirements of r 166(4) does not require the party to identify the individual or individuals connected with the company who believe the allegation to be untrue, unless such is necessary in giving the direct explanation required under r 166(4) UCPR.

Henry J

2 March 2023

The plaintiff applied for a declaration that the defendant is deemed to have admitted various paragraphs of the amended statement of claim. As part of that claim, the plaintiff argued compliance with r 166(4) required a corporate party to identify the individual whose knowledge provides the foundation of the alleged corporate belief. [8]. The Court rejected that argument and found r 166(4) does not require the party to identify the individual or individuals connected with the company who believe the allegation to be untrue, unless such is necessary in giving the direct explanation required under r 166(4) UCPR. [14]

Further, the plaintiff claimed the defendant's response to a group of seven paragraphs of the statement of claim amounted to deemed admissions. In respect of that group of paragraphs, the defendant pleaded three allegations by way of an explanation of the denial of those paragraphs. The first allegation was "the alleged events did not occur". The second was "the Plaintiff is an unreliable historian" and the third was "... the Plaintiff will not establish that the events occurred as alleged". [43].

In respect of the first allegation, the Court indicated that it was not a, per se, problematic pleading "as long as it is accompanied by an explanation taking it beyond a bare assertion of the negative". Crucially, the Court indicated:

"a bare statement of the negative of the allegation pleaded by the plaintiff without elaboration why the allegation is untrue, is inadequate to the task of providing ... a direct explanation". [44].

In respect of the second allegation, the Court found it difficult to see how the vague allegation of historical unreliability of the plaintiff could explain a belief that the plaintiff's allegations are untrue. The Court indicated that:

"... mere knowledge he is an unreliable historian cannot logically carry the factual equation beyond support of non-acceptance, by non-admission, into positive support of contradiction, by denial". [46].

The Court noted "belief" under r 166(4) regarding "a direct explanation for the party's belief that the allegation is untrue" referred to "a belief in a factual state of things" and that state of things is logically necessary to give a "direct explanation" for the belief. [45].

In relation to the third allegation, the Court found that it was an embarrassing distraction as it was a mere prediction of the outcome of the case and not a proper pleading. [47].

The seven paragraphs were found to be deemed admissions, but permission was given to withdraw the admissions and re-plead.

Insite Construction Services Pty Ltd v Daniels Civil Pty Ltd* [\[2023\] QSC 33](#) ☆

The applicant sought a declaration that an Adjudicator’s decision, regarding payment of building works claimed by a subcontractor, was void on account of jurisdictional error. The Adjudicator had adopted the claim amount put forward by the subcontractor. The applicant argued the Adjudicator should have conducted his own valuation of the work done. Crowley J held that the Adjudicator had not erred. The Adjudicator, in circumstances where the claim amount was not challenged by the applicant (and impliedly accepted), was entitled to adopt the subcontractor’s valuation. His Honour applied the Court of Appeal’s decision of Bezzina Developers Pty Ltd v Deemah Stone (Qld) Pty Ltd [2008] 2 Qd R 495. The application was dismissed.

3 March 2023

Background

The applicant, Insite Construction Services Pty Ltd, subcontracted Daniels Civil Pty Ltd (the first respondent) to construct school buildings. [1]. The progress payment provisions in Chapter 3 of the Building Industry Fairness (Security of Payment) Act 2017 (“the Payment Act”) applied to the subcontract. [2].

In June 2022, the first respondent advised the applicant it would be ceasing to trade and so would only complete part of the remaining works. [3]–[4]. A dispute then arose between the parties as to whether this constituted termination of the contract or a variation of the works agreed to be undertaken. [5]–[6].

A further dispute arose in August 2022, when the applicant rejected the first respondent’s claim for a progress payment of $138,387.16, including GST. [7]–[8]. On the first respondent’s application, an Adjudicator (the second respondent) was appointed to decide the matter. [9].

The Adjudicator determined that the first respondent was entitled to full payment, deciding the adjudicated amount as $138,387.16, including GST. [10]. The Adjudicator refused to consider “new reasons” the applicant submitted for a lesser sum to be paid in respect of the claim, as these reasons had not been included in the Payment Schedule, contrary to s 82(4) of the Payment Act. [61]. The Adjudicator concluded that the $138,387.16, including GST, figure was therefore an “uncontested valuation” submitted by the first respondent. [60], [62].

The applicant subsequently filed an Originating Application, seeking a declaration that the Adjudicator's decision is void on account of jurisdictional error and orders seeking to restrain the first respondent from relying on or enforcing the Adjudicator's decision. [11]. The applicant submitted several grounds for jurisdictional error; only the complaint that the Adjudicator erred by not undertaking his own valuation of the building work for the claimed payment is considered in this note. [84].

Decision of the Supreme Court

Crowley J dismissed the application, [122]–[123], finding jurisdictional error by the Adjudicator was not established and the Adjudicator's decision was therefore not void. [85], [121].

Noting that no right of appeal exists in respect of an Adjudicator's decision, his Honour considered "it is well established that adjudication decisions under the Payment Act may be impugned and set aside for jurisdictional error". [31]–[32].

Apposite to the present case, the Court of Appeal in Bezzina Developers Pty Ltd v Deemah Stone (Qld) Pty Ltd [2008] 2 Qd R 495 considered whether an adjudicator had erred by adopting the amount proposed by the claimant as the value of the work done. [99]. The Court of Appeal upheld the trial judge's determination that the subject adjudicator had not erred by accepting the sum sought by the claimant, where the valuation of the work was not in use. [103]–[104]. Crowley J found it was open to the Adjudicator to take such an approach in the present case. [106].

In circumstances like the present case, where there was no dispute that the building work was performed and the valuation of that work was not challenged, the Adjudicator was entitled to "decide" the adjudicated amount by "adopting the unchallenged (and implicitly accepted) valuation." [105]–[107]. The applicant had put forward reasons that the payment should be considered nil because of costs associated with the contract and set-off amounts. However, those reasons, as the Adjudicator found, could not be considered. [106]. It is open to an adjudicator, considering sections 69(c) and 88 of the Payment Act that a failure to give a payment schedule including reasons that challenge the claimant's valuation of work, to conclude "that those matters are not disputed and are impliedly admitted." [107]–[108]. Thus, no reasons were advanced in the present case to challenge the first respondent's valuation. [106].

In that context, the Adjudicator had no obligation to "'inquire' and undertake his own valuation exercise." [105]. Nor was it necessary, in that context, for the Adjudicator to provide extensive reasons on the adjudicated amount. [111]. His Honour concluded there was no error in the Adjudicator performing his function in the way described, nor in citing Queensland v Epoca Constructions Pty Ltd [2006] QSC 324 (which provided an example of where this approach was permissible [93]–[94]) as support for that approach. [109].

Finding no jurisdictional error by the Adjudicator, Crowley J dismissed the application.

The Queensland Judgments website, available at www.queenslandjudgments.com.au, was first launched in March 2018. Its object is to publish, on behalf of the principal courts and tribunals of Queensland, an authoritative, complete and functional collection of Queensland case law (including the Queensland Reports) available online to the community and free of charge.

On 4 September 2020, a new version of the Queensland Judgments website was launched, which expanded its coverage to all Queensland Courts and Tribunals. This content will be continuously updated upon the delivery of each judgment or decision authorised for publication from all Queensland Courts and Tribunals.

On 1 March 2021, an additional 35,000 historical unreported judgments were added, including the complete collection of unreported judgments of the Court of Appeal as well as further instalments of the backset of unreported judgments of: the Supreme Court (now complete from 1979); the District Court (now complete from 2000); the Land Court and Land Appeal Court (now complete from 1985); the Planning & Environment Court (now complete from 2000); the Industrial Court (now complete from 2008); and the entire digital collections of the Childrens Court; the Magistrates Court; the Queensland Civil and Administrative Tribunal; the Legal Practice Tribunal; the Queensland Health Practitioners Tribunal; and the Retail Shop Leases Tribunal.
